Test of the Accession Radio Button

If I understand the purpose of the accession radio button, it is to attach the attachments to the system inventory record.

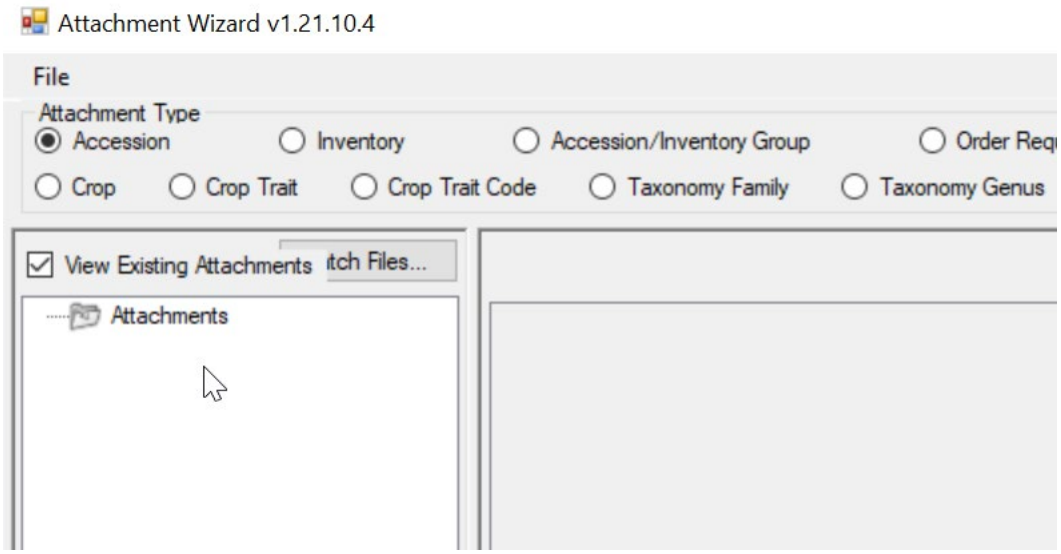

When moving between the two radio buttons, accession, and inventory, the display is not what is expected when the user clicks on the view existing attachments. It seems the checkbox only works once. You can uncheck and check, and the display doesn't refresh.

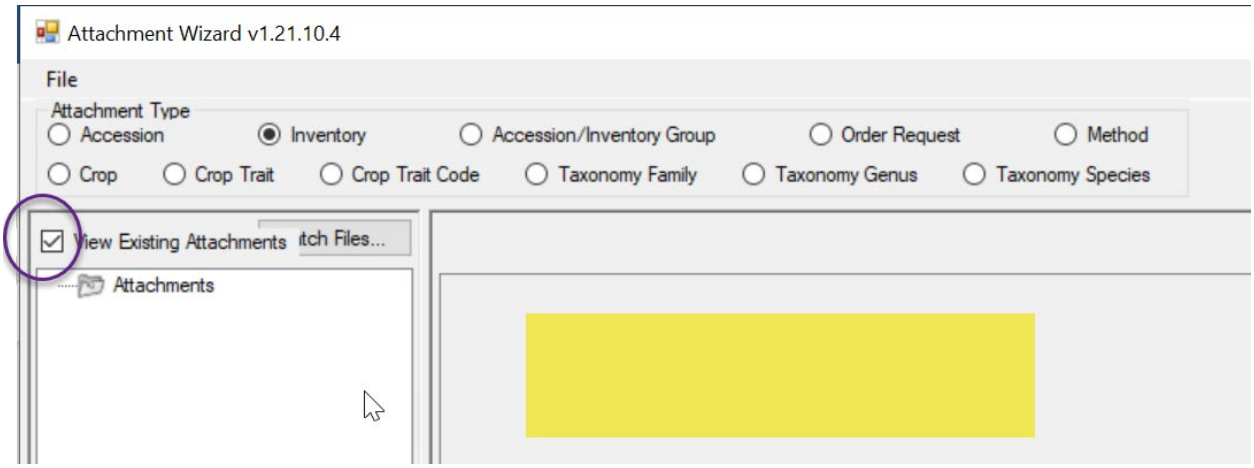

So far so good, except that the Batch Files button gets overlaid when the screen is resized. See black oval above.

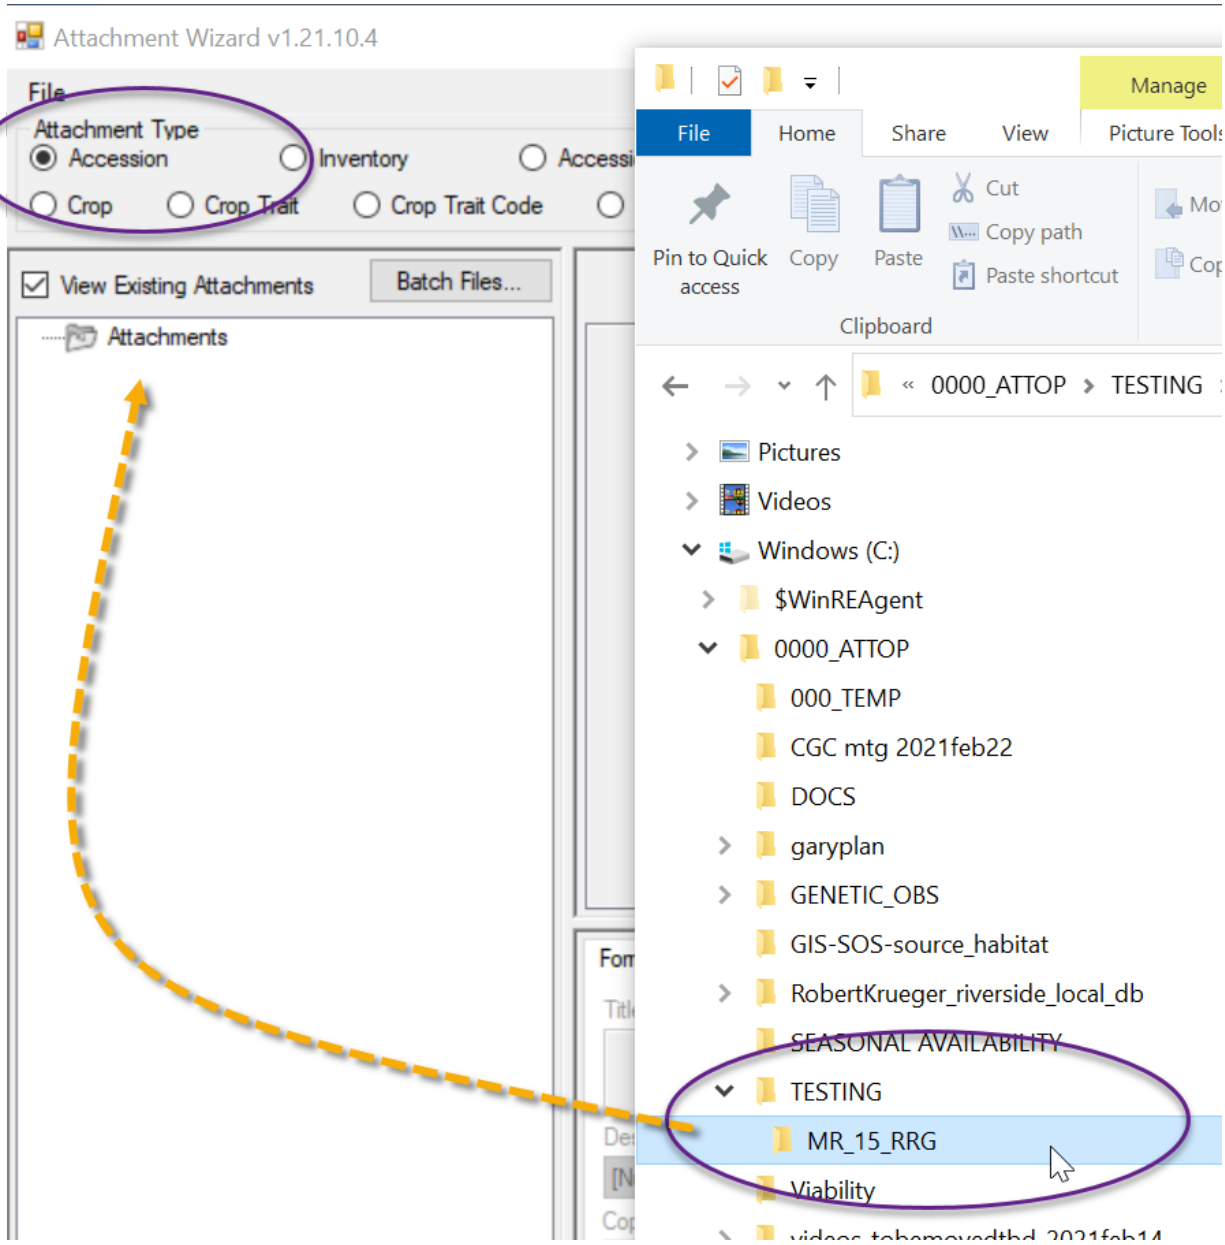

No attachments are displayed. I was expecting to see the two attachments associated with the SYSTEM inventory record to be displayed.

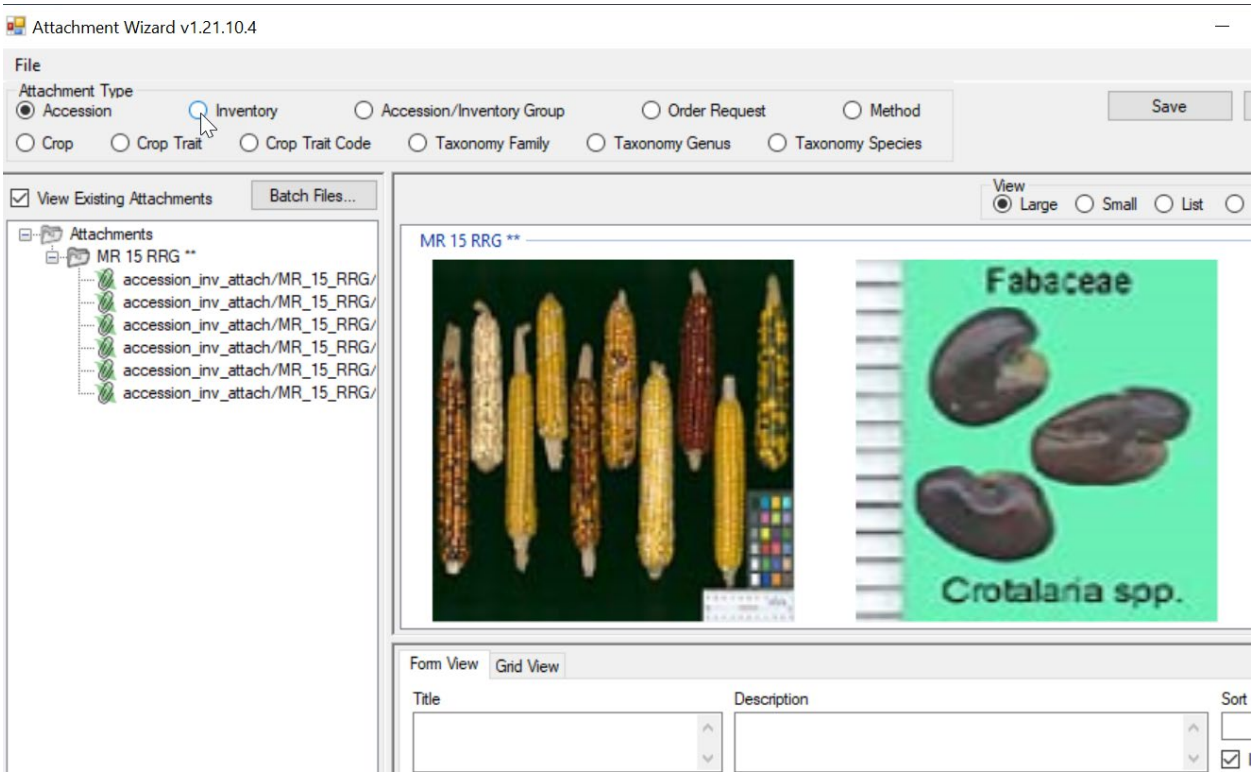

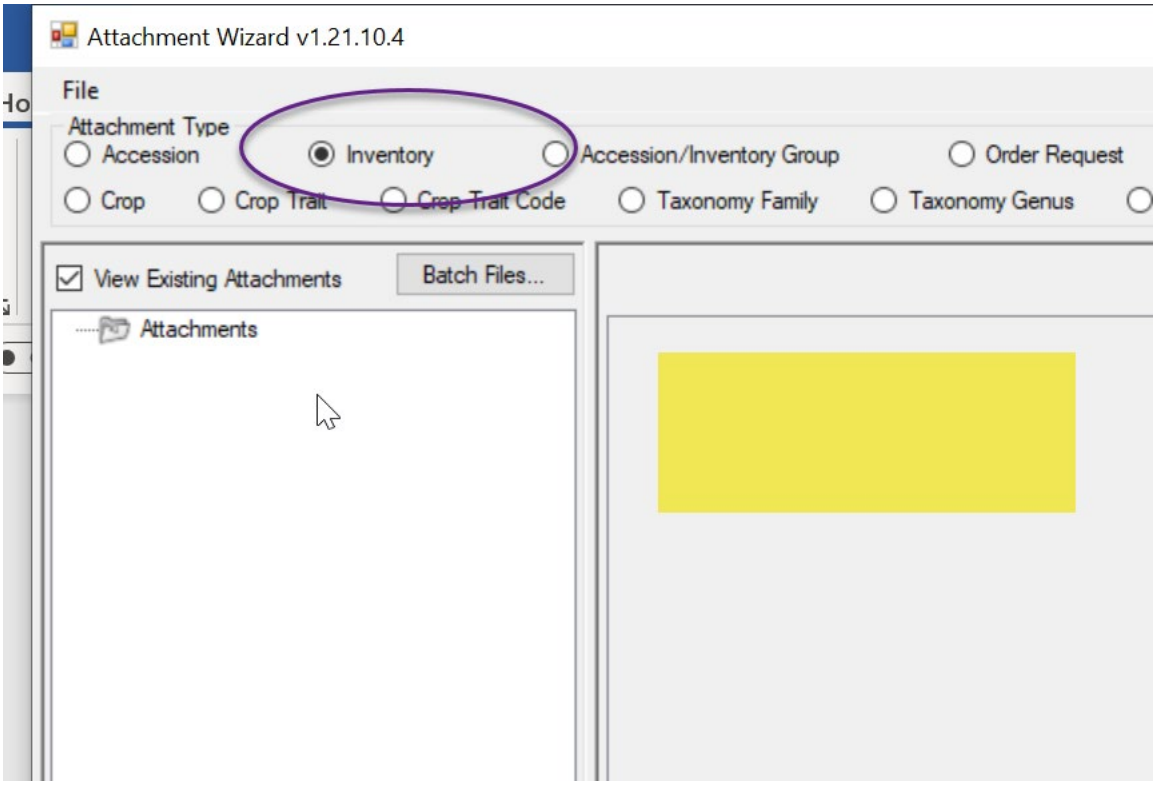

With the View box checked, not displaying any attachments. uncheck/check again makes no difference – the attachments are no longer visible in the wizard.

I started up the wizard again. Can see the attachments with the system inventory record, but only with the Inventory radio button (initially selected):

When user switches to accession – no display, and a return to Inventory radio button (next image), no display.
